Tennis players always hate to lose, but defeat comes particularly hard at the Wismilak International Bali because it means they have to pack their bags and leave one of the most exotic tournament sites in the world. Reigning US Open and Wismilak International champion Svetlana Kuznetsova recalls that on her first visit she was afraid to fully enjoy everything the resort has to offer. "I didn't go out of my room at all, only to eat and to practise and play my matches, because if I went out I knew I couldn't focus. It's impossible," she said. While just about everyone else is at the Grand Hyatt to play, Svetlana is there to work, and that can be hard to handle. Svetlana continued, "I really wish I could come to Bali and have time off."
